

Free Rooms for Fraser Health Authority Workers at Element Vancouver Metrotown

Bosa Properties is proud to be offering free rooms to Fraser Health workers at their Element Vancouver Metrotown hotel during the COVID-19 pandemic. The 169-room hotel will be opening its doors to Fraser Health's staff, who may need a place to self-quarantine, rest or live away from their families while navigating this pandemic.

The Fraser Health Authority delivers a wide range of health care services to more than 1.8 million people in communities stretching from Burnaby to White Rock to Hope, with more than 24,000 staff across 12 acute care hospitals. Bosa will be covering all room, taxes and parking charges for Fraser Health employees, who are currently working diligently on the front-line in support of our community as a whole.

Through this crisis, we're learning that it is more important than ever to come together as a community, to step up and find ways to support each other. For some, home has been a mainstay of our lives during this time of social distancing, self-isolation and quarantine. For our front-line workers, in order to keep their own homes healthy, that often means staying away. Our doors will remain open, as a temporary home, until it's safe for them to return to their own.

Just steps from grocery stores, pharmacies and the Metrotown and Patterson Skytrain stations, Element rooms will be available for extended stays of up to 14 nights. To protect the health and safety of the hotel's guests and employees, heightened sanitation practices have been implemented to decrease exposure, mitigate risks and to help flatten the curve.

All front-line workers with the Fraser Health Authority are directed to contact the Element Vancouver Metrotown hotel directly at info@elementmetrotown.com, or 604-568-3696 for more information and to book available rooms.

For more information on this story please contact:

Cori Howard
cori@corihowardcommunications.com